Buckley Country Day School recently held its 13th Annual National Geographic Bee and one Plandome family took home major honors.

It took four rounds of a championship tiebreaker to crown eighth grader—and Plandome resident—William Stackler as Buckley's overall champion. His sister—fifth grader Katherine Stackler—finished in third place. Seventh grader Andrew Mazza finished in second place.

By winning the event, William Stackler earned the right to take a National Geographic Bee test, in an attempt to compete in the New York State competition.

Moderated by history teachers Patricia Russac and Mercer Hall, the National Geographic Bee featured two students each from fourth through eighth grades. These students earned the right to compete in the Bee by finishing at the top of their grade in smaller Bees held in the classrooms.

The National Geographic Bee is sponsored by the National Geographic Society, and is designed to promote student interest in learning about national and world geography.

Buckley students participating included fourth graders Isabelle Chang (Sands Point) and Peter Andel; fifth graders Jonathan Knox and Katherine Stackler; sixth graders Riya Subbaiah and Lauren Kashinsky; seventh graders Andrew Simeone (Plandome) and Andrew Mazza; eighth graders William Stackler and Arel Pirzada.

William Stackler was the 2015 National Geographic Bee champion. His sister, Katherine Stackler, finished third. Patricia Russac and Dr. Jean-Marc Juhel are pictured with the Stacklers.
